

Truck Growers Figures Revealed at Blevins Meet

P. & N. W. R. R. President
Addresses McCaskill,
Blevins Crowds.

A SUCCESSFUL YEAR

More Diversification Is Planned for Coming Season.

At a meeting of truck growers held at McCaskill and Blevins last Saturday a summary of 1929 crop valuations was given. The figures were compiled by A. J. Stephens, agricultural agent of the P. & N. W. railway and Bert Scott, of McCaskill.

The gross earnings per acre for the following crops are as follows:

Cantaloupes: 1927, $131.50; 1928, $25.60; and 1929, $110.61.

Tomatoes: 1927, $233.50; 1928, $91.30; 1929, $279.20.

Cucumbers: 1927, $23.55; 1928, $57.00; 1929, $63.50.

Rail President Speaks

W. E. Bemis, President of the P. & N. W. Railway, was the principal speaker at both meetings, stressing his points on the growing of sweet corn and strawberries. He said that a grower could enlarge his earnings by planting these two crops. He stated if enough growers were interested in growing sweet corn he would furnish the seed and the ice for packing purposes. This met with hearty approval, and at McCaskill about 50 acres were pledged after the meeting.

He spoke of the time when truck growing first started along the P. & N. W. Ry. and how it had grown to be a large industry in northern Hempstead county. He mentioned several vegetables that could be grown due to climatic conditions and soil.

Mr. Bemis had concluded his talk H. M. Stephens was introduced by A. J. Stephens who acted as chairman of both meetings. Mr. Stephens needed no introduction as (Continued on page six)

California's $780 Eaten By Borers

Sealed Can Fails To Keep Out Microscopic
Bugs.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 3.—Microscopic bugs, made $780 in currency look like a small helping of cold spinach for N. L. Biddle, 80, who thought a tin tobacco box buried in the ground would be a bank.

Unwilling to entrust his savings in the usual manner and fearing burglars might find them if deposited beneath the mattress, the aged man tied his $780 worth of greenbacks in a small sack and then sealed the sack in a tobacco tin.

The tin box was buried beneath his house. That was nine months ago.

The rains came, but Biddle did not worry. His can was waterproof.

Recently he needed a little spending money. The can was dug up, badly rusted, and when Biddle opened it he found only a soggy mass of green paper.

Placed under the microscope, the greenbacks were found to be infested with tiny bugs, invisible to the unaided eye.

Now Biddle is trying to convince the United States Treasury that the emaciated mess was legal tender. A handwriting expert dried out the lump and was able to peel off part of several bills. The silk threads which strengthen currency were intact.

The can, its contents and a full account of the burial are to be sent to Washington, D. C., to learn if the treasury will make a refund of the money.

Circuit Judge Is Ill In Hospital

J. H. McCollum In Critical Condition After Physical Breakdown.

Little improvement was noted in the condition today of circuit Judge J. H. McCollum, who has been in a critical condition in a local hospital for the past several days.

Judge McCollum, who is about 60 years old, suffered a complete physical breakdown in the early part of last summer, and has not recovered.

After being ill in a Memphis hospital for several weeks, he returned to this city, apparently improved, but he soon suffered another breakdown and was taken to a hospital here, where he has been ill for several days. His condition gradually grew worse. According to a report received at this office, he is no better.

Filipino Club Bombed in Race War

Filipino districts in San Francisco and other possible trouble centers in California are under guard as a result of the bombing of the Filipino club at Stockton, shown above, during race riots. Whites in an automobile hurled a bomb into the building, blowing the facade clear across the street and throwing occupants of the club from their beds. The riots extending over a period of several days, resulted in two deaths. There are 15,000 Filipinos in Stockton and vicinity.

Former Mayor Testifies In Trial

Two Fled Guilty In Oklahoma Liquor
Trial.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Feb. 3.—(AP)—Homer Kampfer, former mayor of Earlboro, testified in federal district court in a liquor trial, that he paid Arthur Gordon $1,500 for his presentation before a grand jury in 1927 and 1928 for the protection of a rum gang.

Phil Rigney, former chief of police of Earlboro, and Ralph Adams, alleged bootlegger, two of 32 defendants in trial here for conspiracy to violate the prohibition law, pleaded guilty in court this morning.

Slayer Released Under $5,000 Bond

LITTLE ROCK, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Mrs. Violet Wymer, of Benton, who shot and killed her husband, W. F. Wymer at their home last Wednesday night, was ordered released under a $5,000 bond today.

Prosecuting attorney John McClellan, of Saline county, agreed to her admission to liberty under the bond.

Mrs. J. W. Martin, who was at the home of the Dwyers at the time of shooting, supported Mrs. Wymer and said she was not the aggressor.

Movies and Millionaires Shift Trees Here and Yon

Los Angeles, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Many fine trees of this locality never know where they will be rustling next.

Duels are fought and love trysts are held beneath them. They weave as man-made wind mians through their boughs and an artificial rain beats down upon them.

These trees are rented by movie firms and society matrons on various occasions. It is not unusual for a tree weighing 10 tons to be shifted within a short time.

"We frequently move trees 30 years old and have moved one that was 120 years old," said W. H. Smither, nursery manager.

Groundhog Not a Weather Prophet Scientist Insists

February 2nd is not even February 2nd to the groundhog; and certainly it isn't Groundhog Day, and most emphatically it has nothing to do with a late Spring, shadow or no shadow, insists Dr. Raymond Ditmars, curator for many years at the New York Zoo.

One widespread tradition is that of the woodchuck or groundhog sees his shadow on February 2nd he retires for another six weeks of winter, indicating a belated Spring for the countryside.

The groundhog is the husky eastern relative of the prairie dog. In the fall he eats until he is bursting fat. Then he descends into his burrow, rolls up in a ball and falls into a deep sleep. If he is dug out in the winter time he may be rolled around like a ball

Magnolia Banker Pneumonia Victim

Served With People's Bank Since It's Establishment.

MAGNOLIA, Feb. 3.—E. C. Lyle, aged 51, cashier of the Peoples Bank of Magnolia, died at his home Sunday night after a few days illness of double pneumonia.

Mr. Lyle had been with the Peoples bank since it was established 28 years ago, as assistant cashier until the death of T. A. Monroe four years ago, when Mr. Lyle succeeded him as cashier. He was associated with many of the city's interests.

He was a director of the Banner News Publishing Company, a member of the board of governors of the new Magnolia Golf Club and had served as a member of the council as city recorder, and was for many years a member of the board of stewards of the Methodist Episcopal church here. He was reared in Magnolia and was related to many of the city's oldest settlers. He never was married. Mr. Lyle is survived by one brother, Charles Lyle and one sister, Miss Tellena Lyle.

Literary, Track To Be Held Here

Ashdown Gets Senior
Boys Basketball Tournament.

The literary and track meet of district 10 will be held in this city on April 14 and 15. It was decided at a meeting of the Arkansas Athletic association officials of this district, who met at Lewisville Saturday.

Ashdown was selected for the senior boys basketball tournament of District 10 to be held March 7 and 8. The junior basketball tournament will be held in Stamps, February 14 and 15.

A. L. Burns, of Magnolia, was elected president of the district organization; Coach Williams of Ashdown, vice president; and J. R. Meaders of Lewisville, treasurer.

Coach Wilkins and superintendent Paisley, of this city attended the meeting.

Former Hope Man Dies In Little Rock

J. W. Frith, aged 80, former Hope man, died in Little Rock, Saturday, after an illness of several days.

His body was brought here yesterday, and the remains were buried in Rose Hill cemetery. He lived in this city until about a month ago, when he moved to Little Rock.

He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. McBride, of Louisiana, two sons, Clarence Frith, of Little Rock, and J. W. Frith, of Hope.

Elevator Obeys Master's Voice

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 3.—A score or more of persons marvelled as "Uncle Jimmy" Kelly, operator of the courthouse elevator here for 20 years, stood in a hall and ordered his empty elevator up and down—and watched it obey.

"Up," he shouted and it went.

"Stop," he ordered and it obeyed.

"Down," he commanded and it came, apparently obeying his voice for the elevator was empty.

"We're testing it," he explained.

"There's a repairman up at the top of the shaft operating it from there."

Fair Federation To Meet Friday

W. Homer Pigg, State
Secretary, Announces Program.

With the preparation of a tentative program, plans for the annual convention of the Arkansas Federation of Fairs which will be held in Little Rock Friday, February 7, virtually have been completed, according to W. Homer Pigg of this city, secretary and treasurer of the federation.

The convention is expected by the officials to be the largest and most successful of any previous meeting in the history of the organization. Those in charge of preparations say that practically every county in which county and district fairs are held will be represented at the convention.

The three sessions of the event will be held in the convention hall of the Marion Hotel. The morning and afternoon meetings will be devoted largely to a discussion of various phases of fair work while a feature of the evening session will be a banquet and entertainment program. The principal address on the evening program will be delivered by Harry D. Wilson, president of the Louisiana Federation of Fairs and Agricultural Commissioner of the State of Louisiana.

The program follows:

Morning program: 9 a. m. registration; 10 a. m. meeting called to order by President B. W. Benton of Pine Bluff; address of welcome, Mayor Pat Robinson; welcome on behalf of the Little Rock Chamber of Commerce; D. Hodson Lewis; response to welcome address, C. O. Wahlquist, secretary of the Crowley Ridge Fair; president's annual message, B. W. Benton; secretary's report, W. Homer Pigg; appointment of committees; "The Home Demonstration Agents' Part in a Successful Fair," Miss Connie J. Bonislagel, state home demonstration agent; "The Railroad's Interest in Fairs," E. H. McReynolds, assistant to the president of the Missouri Pacific Lines; "The Value of Fair Federations," Frank D. Fuller, secretary and manager of the Mid-South Fair, Memphis.

Afternoon Program: 1:30. "Fairs as Community, County and State Builders," Governor Harvey Parnell; "Why We Should Have an Anticline County Fair," T. Roy Reid, director of agriculture extension work, University of Arkansas; "The Success of a Fair Depends upon Careful Planning," E. G. Bylander, manager of the Arkansas State Fair; "School Exhibits at the County Fair," J. J. Bond, county superintendent of schools, El Dorado.

Open Forum: "How to Interest Local Merchants and Manufacturers," E. B. Feinberg, secretary of the Five County Fair, Pine Bluff; "Why Business Men Should Support the County Fair," W. M. Graham, secretary of the Bradley County Fair; "Why Every County Agent Should be Viciously Interested in the County Fair," W. L. Hall, county agent, Conway; "The Relation of 4-H Club Work to the Fair," Mary Buechley, home demonstration agent, Hope; "My Biggest Problem," general discussion led by Ben C. Eastin, secretary of the Lafayette county fair, and R. P. Bowen, secretary of the Hot Springs county fair.

Night session. Banquet program; entertainment features furnished by Dorothy Donelson Studio; introduction of honor guests; "Why Fair Federations," Harry D. Wilson, president of the Louisiana Federation of Fairs; reports of committees; election of officers for the ensuing year.

Resignation Of Chief Justice Is Given President

Resigned Because of Serious Condition In North Carolina.

WELL KNOWN FIGURE

Was Leader In American Government More
Than 25 Years

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Chief Justice Taft has resigned. His resignation was submitted through his son, Robert A. Taft to president Hoover today. His resignation has not been accepted.

His resignation was tendered because of the serious condition of the Chief Justice, who has been in Asheville, N. C., for more than a week.

His return to his home here is expected tomorrow from Asheville. Robert said his father could be as comfortable here as in Asheville, and desired his return home.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Chief Justice Taft's resignation has been handed to President Hoover and will take effect immediately upon the acceptance. Mr. Taft will automatically be placed on the judicial retired list since the requisite number of years has been served.

The resignation of Taft removes from public life one of the outstanding figures of all time. He has served as president of the United States, secretary of war, governor general of the Philippine Islands and later chief justice of the United States. He has served as a leader in the American government for more than a quarter of a century.

Taft was born in 1857 and is now living in his 73rd year. Despite his age he is able to fight illness, and has been actively engaged in his duties.

Texarkana Mail Carrier Is Dead

Served As City Mail Carrier In Texarkana
Over 29 Years.

TEXARKANA, Feb. 3.—Death Sunday afternoon claimed its first victim from the ranks of the five original mail carriers in Texarkana, when Charles A. Stringer, 70, died at the family home, 1004 Ash street, about 5 p. m.

Stringer victim of a paralytic stroke which he suffered Tuesday on a downtown street, served as city mail carrier here for 29 years and eight months, being among the first five men to serve as postmen after the institution of free delivery in Texarkana, 32 years and nine months ago.

Washington Gets Gas Fuel Today

Homes Being Connected With Gas Company's
New Pipe Line.

Natural gas fuel is being given Washington, county seat of Hempstead, today for the first time in its history.

Crews of the Arkansas Natural Gas corporation began work Monday morning connecting Washington homes with the main gas line that was built from the compressor station at Emmet through Washington to Okay and Nashville.

Four men are making the domestic consumer connections, and the entire town of Washington will be served within two weeks, it was announced Monday by John Martin, manager of the Hope office of the gas company.

Russellville Bank Head Found Dead

William G. Neal Suffered From Acute Attack of Indigestion.

RUSSELLVILLE, Feb. 3.—(AP)—William G. Neal, 52, president of The Bank of Russellville, and business leader of that town, was found dead in his bed early this morning.

He suffered an acute attack of indigestion Saturday night but improved yesterday, and no concern was left about his recovery.

He apparently had died about four hours before being found. Mr. Neal succeeded his father as president upon the latter's death in 1920.

Glider Launched From Flying Dirigible

These pictures prove, according to naval aeronautical experts, that motorless gliders can play an important part in the safe operation of huge dirigibles. In the aerial view above you see how a tiny glider, piloted by Lieut. Ralph S. Barnaby, was launched from the Los Angeles high above the air station at Lakehurst, N. J. The arrows show how he dived almost vertically after releasing the craft from its fastenings under the hull of the dirigible. Twelve minutes later, as pictured below, he landed safely on the field.

Thought To Be Rum Runner, Shot

Canadian Government To Make Investigation of Shooting.

DETROIT, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Arthur LaFramondie, a Canadian citizen, was wounded on the Detroit river here today by bullets he said were fired by two United States custom patrol inspectors while on the Canadian side of the river.

Custom officers recorded on report of the shooting, although agents were operating in this region. LaFramondie said the shots were fired at him when he was making his way across the ice toward his home. He stopped and was helping a friend with a sledge of liquor, when bullets struck him.

Col. C. S. Robinson, an official of the Canadian government, will make an investigation of the affair.

President To Make Trip To Long Key, Fla.

Washington, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Announcement at the White House that president Hoover hoped to get away on a fishing trip soon, was made today. If the president is able, he will go direct from Washington to Long Key, Fla., without any stop.

He probably will board the boat Saunterer, and spend his entire time upon the craft. He will make no speech on his way south or on his return. Mrs. Hoover will probably accompany him.

Noted Indian Philanthropist Dies Once Rich, Dies Poor, But Respected

GLACIER PARK, Mont., Feb. 3.—Big Springs, next to Chief Two Guns White Calf the most prominent Indian of the Glacier National Park reservation, died recently on his ranch near here his squaw and four children survive.

Although Big Springs' face never appeared on any of Uncle Sam's coins, J. H. Sherburne, president of the First National Bank of the Agency town of Browning, honored the old Indian by using a picture of Big Springs on the bank's checks that circulated on the reservation.

Notwithstanding the fact that Big Springs spoke little English, he was at one time considered one of the big private stockmen of this region. He was noted for his liberality, and when the severe winter of 1919 and 1920 hit the Indians especially hard, he donated large supplies of beef from his herd, and presented each needy family with a saddle horse or a team, until his generosity left him a poor man instead of a comparatively rich one.

Accident Victim Dies In Hospital Sunday Morning

McRee Stroud, Employee of Pressing Shop,
In Collision.

WAS BURIED TODAY

Funeral Services Held At
First Methodist Church.

McRee, aged 21, son of one of the most prominent families of this city, who was injured in an automobile accident Thursday died at 8 o'clock Sunday morning.

Stroud, who was an employee of a cleaning and pressing firm here, was injured when his light truck collided with a car driven by J. G. Barber, who was uninjured. The accident occurred at the intersection of Front and Pine streets about 7:30 o'clock Thursday evening.

Stroud was rushed to a local hospital in an unconscious condition. It was later revealed he was suffering from a fractured pelvis, dislocated hip and other internal injuries. After growing gradually worse late Friday night, the youth rallied somewhat Saturday morning. He grew worse that evening and never rallied again, the end came at 8 o'clock Sunday morning.

Young Stroud was a member of last year's graduating class of Hope high school, a member of the Antlers, a junior organization of the Elks lodge, and one of the most popular young men of Hope.

Funeral services will be held from the First Methodist Church at 2 this afternoon, with Rev. Buddin, pastor of the First Methodist church, in charge of services. The remains will be buried in Rose Hill cemetery.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Beulah Stroud, three sisters, Martha and Elizabeth, of this city, and Mrs. Harold Stevenson, of Iabel, Okla., and one brother, Wingfield, of this city.

Farm Vocational Staff Meets Here

Smith-Hughes Teachers
Hold Business Conference in City.

Smith-Hughes vocational agricultural teachers from nine Southwest Arkansas points held a business conference at Hotel Barlow in this city Saturday.

Various discussions were held on local agricultural problems, the Smith-Hughes teachers directing all their attention to work in the home community. The conference was addressed by E. B. Matthews, state director of vocational education, and R. B. Smith, state supervisor of this work.

Smith-Hughes teachers present at the conference were:

Duke Root, of Ashdown; Alfred Ial. Foreman; H. E. Maxwell, Cole; John B. Mason, Atlanta; Andrew F. Cheatham, Waldo (Mt. Vernon school); T. E. Lund, Texarkana; Frank Pfeiffer, Bluff City; Kenneth Sager, Bodcaw, and F. N. Powell, Magnolia.

Blackwood Thru Tax Controversy

Says Nothing Further Will Be Gained From Department.

LITTLE ROCK, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Highway commissioner Dwight Blackwood, said today that the free license controversy was finished as far as he was concerned. Regardless of the fact that County Judge W. S. Sibeck, has expressed dissatisfaction when the highway commission refused to exempt certain motor vehicles from tax. Blackwood said nothing further would be gained from the highway department.

"I intend to see that the provisions of act No. 52 that all motor vehicles have those already exempt, be carried out. That is final."

Meanwhile highway policemen of Pulaski county ordered several persons to appear in Municipal court in Little Rock to answer for state vehicle license tax. When advised of the highway policemen's action, Judge Sibeck announced he had purchased license for trucks owned and operated by the county. He purchased 32 license tags for passenger cars operated by the county.

CITY

Apply the revenues of the municipal power plant to develop the industrial and social resources of Hope.
More city pavement in 1936, and improved sanitary conditions in the alleys and business back-yards.
Support the Chamber of Commerce.

COUNTY

A county highway program providing for the construction of a minimum amount of all-weather road each year, to gradually reduce the dirt road mileage.
Political and economic support for every scientific agricultural program which offers practical benefits to Hempstead county's greatest industry.
Encourage farmer organizations, believing that co-operative effort is as practical in the country as it is in town.

STATE

Continued progress on the state highway program.
Fearless tax reform, and a more efficient government through the budget system of expenditures.
Free Arkansas from the cattle tick.

A Sensible Decision

THE State Highway Commission at its meeting last Friday decided to allow free licenses for city and county-owned automobiles. A previous court ruling would have prohibited "official licenses," had the Highway Commission chosen to exercise this extreme authority.

Mayors and county judges all over the state were up in arms, for the decision of the court was revolutionary. The Highway Commission, however, has taken a most sensible course.

It is obvious that for the state to tax necessary vehicles owned and operated by lesser branches of the same government, is merely to take money out of one pocket and put it in another. The state commissioners, realizing this, have determined not to go the full limit prescribed by law. There will be sharp scrutiny of all persons using free official licenses, but city and county cars generally will be exempt from tax.

That the issue has been amicably settled, appears in the following statement attributed by the Associated Press to Neill Bohlinger, attorney for the county judge association:

"With this view taken by the commission there will be no disposition to amend the present act abolishing free auto tags to public officials, either at a proposed special session or at the next regular meeting of the legislature in January, 1937."

Stores, Money and Men

THERE was a poignant moment during the Hope Rotary club luncheon last Friday, when the club called on Roscoe Evans, who leaves for Michigan this week, for a farewell toast.

Mr. Evans, who opened the J. C. Penney company store here nearly five years ago, made a short and inspiring talk on the kind of men he had met in Hope and Hempstead county. Himself a "chain store" man, he laid his hand on the shoulder of George Robison, an independent, and said, "I have found this man a good neighbor and a good merchant. He has been a real help to me—the head of a competitive house, but one who never failed to co-operate with me in whatever was for the good of the community and its general trade."

This writer has been in Hope only a little more than a year. But he has lived in other cities, and has known other commercial associations. And he can honestly say this: That a great deal of the famous Hope tradition for being a wide-awake and friendly city is due to such men as Mr. Evans and Mr. Robison.

In this cynical age we sometimes forget the most important factor of all—men. In business we imagine that a million dollars is powerful, and that a "chain" is omnipotent. Our little minds get it all wrong. Big money has no special privilege under the economic law; and there is nothing magic in the name "chain"—unless the local manager is a magician.

It takes money to start stores, and it takes men to carry them on. With all this blather heard about "chains" nowadays, one can't help but remember that picture last Friday, when Mr. Evans and Mr. Robison met for the last time. Two institutions. Two different systems. Both successful.

No single business method ever yet has dominated the human factor, and in this big country of ours there are enough different kinds of men to guarantee that, before we are through, a lot of "chains" will make mistakes and a lot of independent merchants will have reaped new success. But when two real men meet, the story is—success for both; and friendship.

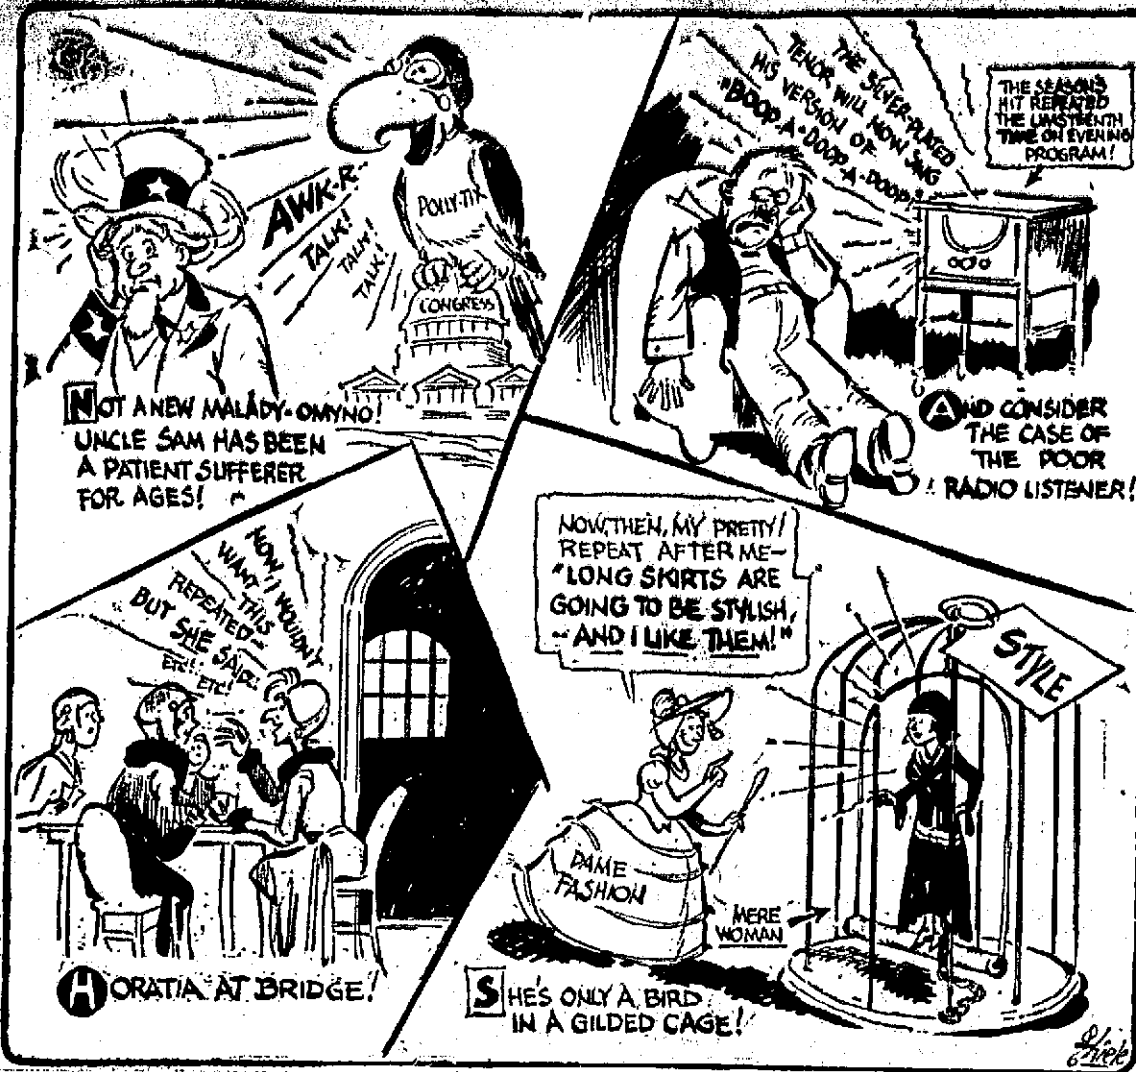

The Chemist's Responsibility

A LONDON chemist predicts that newspaper paper may eventually be made out of air, so that exhaustion of the pulp-wood forests which now constitute the source of supply will not put all the newspapers out of business.

His statement recalls, once again, the supreme importance to this modern world of synthetic materials. We are using up our natural resources at a terrific rate. Within a few decades some of our most essential raw materials will be practically gone; wood pulp, out of which newsprint is made, is only one of them.

If the chemists can find new ways to make these things we shall not have to worry. If they can't, the world is going to face some extremely tough problems during the next century.

Editor, The Star:
The writer feels that the newspaper, as the mouthpiece for the general public in the Southwest counties, should make a drive to force the administration at Little Rock to do something in reference to dipping cattle so as to get rid of the tick.

If it is necessary to call a special session, this should be done. Why should one or two men run the whole earth and hold back progress in Hempstead county for no telling how long? How can the people in the Southwest counties ever get away from cotton if we cannot get rid of the ticks?

Shall we just sit down and wait and take what is handed to us by a few

NERVES SEEMED ALL TO PIECES

Lady Didn't Sleep Well; Was Weak, Suffering Before She Took Cardui.

Cairo, Ill.—A year and a half ago, when she was in a run-down, weakened condition, Mrs. John A. Medina, of 2901 Commercial Avenue, this city, took Cardui. Here is what she has to say about it:

"At times I would have had headaches. My legs hurt a great deal. My nerves were all to pieces, and I did not sleep well. I got so I could not sleep a night through. I read about Cardui. I began taking this medicine and found it in every way suited to my need."

"I began to feel better very shortly, but I continued taking Cardui as I wanted to feel strong and well."

"Before long I was feeling just fine. I slept well. I had a good appetite. Soon everybody was telling me how well I looked. My color was good and I felt like doing my work without any great effort."

"I am glad I took Cardui. I recommend it to others, as my health greatly improved after I had taken it."

MY PLATFORM

To the Democratic Voters of Hempstead County:

Believing that every man who runs for the office of Sheriff, should have a platform on which to stand, not only while running for the office, but one which he will carry out if elected, I am going to submit from time to time through the news papers, a platform, of the principles on which I am making my race, and the principles for which I have always stood.

The Sheriff being an enforcement officer should be a law abiding man himself, therefore, I contend that no man who drinks or who favors liquor is capable of enforcing the liquor laws or it would be just as reasonable to elect a thief to enforce the law against stealing. While I believe that all laws should be enforced it is a fact that the liquor traffic is the greatest evil we have to contend with in this part of the country and is the main issue in the Sheriff's race.

I do not drink liquor and never have, and if I am elected Sheriff I will not have a man on my force who drinks or whose character is not otherwise good. I contend that there are plenty of this class of men in the county who are capable.

If elected I shall give all of my time to the field work in cooperation with my deputies and I do not expect for my deputies to work for nothing.

In closing this, my first letter, I wish to say to the good men and women voters of this county that if you give me your support in my race for Sheriff, that I will never give you any cause to regret it and to those who do not know me will ask that you make inquiry as to the kind of citizen I have always been.

Respectfully submitted,
Riley Lewallen

HOOKS AND SLIDES

West, Young Coach

JIMMY PHELAN and Doc Spears are the latest of the football coaches to join the growing group of eastern coaches along the Pacific coast. Coast writers call their move "the big league of football" and say that when coaches achieve prominence in their art in the minor leagues of the east, they come to the "big show." And, looking back on the season's record, we are not sure if they are all wrong.

Howard Jones, whose Southern California team made the Pitt Panthers look like a house cat when they fell in stepped on, is a young man from Yale, who stopped off at Cornell, then went over to the University of California, where he coached at Pittsburg, and then coached at Pittsburg on his way to the Golden Gate. Bill Spaulding, who was at Pittsburg before Spears, and whose team was a Wabash, no less, has been producing good teams at U. C. L. A. (University of California, Los Angeles). Skip Madigan was graduated by the fathers of Notre Dame and by Knute Rockne, after which he went to St. Mary's and produced some tip-top football teams. Phil Schissler of the Oregon Aggies is an old Nebraska and Lombard man.

The coast sells its baseball players to the east, and the east sends quite a few of its Grade A coaches to the far west. What could be fairer than that?

The Window Washer

BACK to 1912 Doc Spears was washing the windows of the chapter at Knox College, Galesburg, Ill. He received a room in the chapter in return for keeping the building spotless. He didn't stay long, however, and the next thing you heard of him, his name bobbed up as one of Walter Camp's All-America selections, from Dartmouth. He coached at Dartmouth and West Virginia before going to Minnesota. If you care for figures,

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

HEINIE WAGNER, new manager of the Boston Red Sox is reticent when it comes to public oratory, but he's a wonder at riding a team from his own bench. . . . In the old days Wagner was one of the "Rough Riders." . . . He and Bill Carrigan used to tear Ty Cobb to pieces on the diamond. . . . But when he's called upon for a speech, Heinie always said, "Let Bill do it." . . . Joe Humphries, the Madison Square Garden announcer, can tell you the name of every second who ever sat in a boxer's corner. . . . Broadway has sent a number of her most talented sons to Florida to spin the wheel and deal the bank for the visiting gamblers. . . . Bill Tilden made such a startling success as a night club entertainer that he is going back to tennis.

Dr. Spears (he has studied medicine) has won 66 games as a coach, lost eight and tied seven. Which is pretty good for a window washer from Knox.

Phelan's Fear

JIMMY PHELAN could not learn Latin. That is why he scored an average of only 96.4 in his first year. He couldn't make the Columbia University prep school team, but he did. He couldn't run a fishing crew on the Columbia river, either, but he needed the money, so he did. Now he has tackled a job that probably will prove to be the biggest test he ever had.

Phelan says the reason he has been able to get things done is that he has always been afraid. Afraid of failure.

Ruth is concerned.

"I've played 18 holes a day rain or shine, since I hit Florida and I'm down to a good poundage now," says the Bam. "But it certainly took a lot of golf to keep me in condition."

Spotlight Centers On Caldwell As Lew Fonseca Bows To Illness

CLEVELAND, Feb. 3.—(AP)—This major league baseball business is a fascinating thing. You never know when an opening is going to be provided for some youngster to start on his way to stardom.

Last year the Yankees needed a new catcher; young Bill Dickey came up and established himself as one of the greatest young receivers in the game. Cleveland needed outfield and pitching help. Earl Averill and Wes Farrell came to the rescue. So it was throughout the majors with other first year men like Outfielder Roy Johnson of the Tigers, Johnny Frederick of the Dodgers, Evar Swanson of the Reds and Chuck Klein of the Phillies shooting up to the big show to strengthen fielding positions and to add batting punch. Similar opportunities stand out now. And noteworthy among these is the one involving first base at Cleveland.

Here are the Indians with Lew

Fonseca, regular first baseman, so weakened by a siege of sickness that his physicians say he may not be able to play baseball before mid-summer.

This brings into the picture Bruce Caldwell, a rookie, who now can quit singing about waiting for his lucky break.

Caldwell, farmed out by Cleveland, played great ball for the New Haven club of the Eastern league last year, finishing with a batting average of .339, but until a few weeks ago he apparently stood little chance of getting a crack at the regular first base job for the Indians.

Fonseca had inspired the whole Cleveland club with his smart fielding and his batting which placed him at the top of the league for the season.

Lew will be out at least temporarily. So it will be up to Caldwell. It's one of those opportunities of a lifetime. Those who saw Bruce do it for Old Eli are pulling for him in this new test.

Four Reeves Brothers Are Big Hoosier Stars

DANVILLE, Ind., Feb. 3.—(AP)—By way of introduction to the basketball world: Central Normal college's basketball team was the first to defeat the sensational Butler University quintet. And defeating Butler was a seven day wonder event as the Bulldogs had knocked over topnotchers as Purdue, Vanderbilt, and Montana.

And the score: Central Normal 40; Butler 16. Here's why this little school in this little town is the talk of Hoosierdom: basketball's capital:

The four Reeves brothers. There is Ginger, all-state center last year, with 254 points in 21 games; Billy, with 159 points; Gip, and Billy, first-year on the team.

Central Normal plays only Indiana colleges this year, but next year Russell Cook, the coach, expects larger ramparts to assault. He will enter his team in the national A. A. U. tournament. Last year Central went to the quarter-finals in the Kansas City event.

His scoring still sticks in the 90s, but he says, he doesn't "have that golf swing."

Along Broadway in New York, the name of Morton Downey, known as "Broadway's golden-voiced tenor" is far better known these days than any other night club entertainer. Since his appearance in the Pathe all dialogue and singing production, "Mother's Boy" which was shown for weeks at the Cohan theatre, he has become known to every radio fan, and his popularity throughout the country has increased by leaps and bounds.

Mr. Downey's second appearance in a Pathe dialogue and singing picture is in "Lucky in Love," written by Gene Markey and produced by Robert T. Kane. It is a splendid story of Irish life and some of the action transpires in a department store. In the case Betty Lawford as leading woman, Halliwell Hobbes, Colin Keith-Johnston, J. M. Fastest Men of Gridiron In Meet

Pair of Sprint Specialists Will Have It Out In Track Meet.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—(AP)—To make it more realistic, the boys might go into a huddle, toss a couple of footballs to Jack Elder and Cy Leland, then let them run it out.

There two speed merchants meet for the first time on the boards in the sprint series featuring the Millrose A. A. track and field carnival at Madison Square Garden, Feb. 8.

One of the high spots of the New York indoor athletic season, the contest will help settle the debate over which was the faster on the gridirons last fall.

Elder of Notre Dame and Leland of Texas Christian unquestionably were the fastest two men in mole-skins and headgear during the last football season. They had national reputations as sprinters before gaining gridiron fame.

If long dashes for touchdowns was the only yardstick by which All-America talent was selected, the South Bend flier and the Texas Express hardly could have been left off the 1929 mythical all-star eleven. As it was they were more consistently brilliant in the touchdown chase than such elusive carriers as Marsters and Booth.

Elder, in eight of Notre Dame's nine games last fall, either scored personally on long runs or contributed to the count with long passes or dashes, capped by his 88-yard run gallop to the touchdown that beat the Army.

Leland's specialty was running back kickoffs or punts for touchdowns his most spectacular work contributing to Texas Christian's defeats of Texas, Texas Aggies and Baylor on the march to the Southwest championship.

There is not much to choose between the pair on the basis of their outdoor track records. Both have beaten 10 seconds for the century on the cinders and probably equalled it on the gridiron. Elder, however, has the edge on his rival in experience, especially on the boards. Leland has never completed indoors.

Elder showed his heels to the Olympic champion, Percy Williams, last winter and has lost only one race this season. The stocky Notre Dame star is a flash off the marks where most of the indoor sprints are decided.

Menu For the Family

BY SISTER MARY
NEA Service Writer

THE woman who must feed a family and closely count the lost must spend lavishly of her time. Much thought and planning will be required if the meals are not monotonous. Meats, particularly, present a difficult problem and much ingenuity is needed to maintain a well-balanced and nourishing diet.

The glandular organs are of much food value and in most instances are quite cheap in price. Even liver, which has soared in price since it has gained its widespread reputation, is not prohibitive, since it contains no waste material and offers such excellent food values. Heart and kidney are very cheap and when properly cooked, make delicious meals.

The heart and kidneys as well as the liver are much richer in vitamins than the steaks and roasts and for this reason are very desirable foods. Their mineral content is noteworthy, also. All in all, the heart and kidneys are cheap sources of valuable food elements and should be used frequently.

Lamb and veal are, of course, the most delicate. But if beef heart is parboiled before using, as suggested in the recipe, it will be found very satisfactory.

If an entire oven dinner is planned whenever the meat is to be baked or roasted, an appreciable saving in fuel is effected.

Baked Veal Heart

One calf's heart, 1-2 pound lean veal, 3 slices bacon, 1-2 cup stale bread crumbs, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 1-2 teaspoon minced onion, 1 egg, salt and pepper. Wash heart through several waters and remove veins and arteries. Let stand in cold water for one hour. Drain and dry. Put veal and bacon through the fine knife of the food chopper two or three times. Add crumbs and seasoning. Mix well and add egg slightly beaten. Mix thoroughly. Fill heart with forcemeat and sew or bind firmly with cord. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and roll in flour. Brown quickly in a hot frying pan. Put into a deep casserole, half cover with boiling water and cover closely. Cook two hours in a slow oven. Add more water if necessary to prevent burning. When ready to serve remove to a hot platter and make a gravy with liquor in casserole. Pour over and around heart. Be sure to remove string before sending to the table. Slice across to serve.

BEWARE THE COUGH FROM COLDS THAT HANG ON

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Rash Romance

BEGIN HERE TODAY
JUDITH CAMERON, 1921st in a New York publishing house, married ARTHUR KNIGHT, her employer. Knight is a widower with a daughter, TONY, and a son, JUNIOR.

The girl ignores her stepmother. Later she tells Judith she must leave the house. Knight over-hears and compels Tony to apologize.

The girl spends much of her time with MICKEY MORTIMER, a blonde amusement seeker, whom she met in Paris. He is separated from his wife and deep in a flirtation with Tony. As days pass a state of armed neutrality exists between Tony and Judith.

ANDY CRAIG, a young man Knight has helped through college, calls on Tony. He has been in love with her—rather hopelessly—for a long while. Craig comes to the house frequently and Tony, in a mood of spite, tries to convince her father the young man is carrying on an affair with Judith. When Knight denies this angrily Tony tricks Judith and Andy Craig into a luncheon engagement and brings her father upon the scene.

Tony and Mortimer are arrested for reckless driving. Knight brings his daughter home. For days the girl is sulky and rebellious. Affairs reach such a pitch that Judith appeals to Andy Craig. Knight sees the pair together but later Judith denies that she spent the afternoon in town.

Knight tries to overcome his suspicions. Craig calls to see Tony. Her father goes to tell the girl of his arrival and she refuses to see Craig, but father and daughter are reconciled. Knight promises Tony a trip to Miami with Judith, unaware that Mickey Mortimer has gone to the Florida resort.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXVIII

FROM the very start Judith opposed making the trip south. "But I don't want to go, Arthur!" she objected. "I'd much rather stay here."

Knight explained patiently. "It's going to do you good," he told her. "And then think of Tony! She needs to get away and you know I can't send her alone. I wish you could have heard the child talk tonight, Judith. Everything's changed. Why, she admitted she's been foolish, said she was ashamed of the way she's been acting, wants to make a new start."

"I'm glad," Judith answered. "But I'd SO much rather stay here with you!"

Her husband shook his head. "You aren't going to feel that way any longer, dear. Why, I believe these four weeks will bring you and Tony together in a way nothing else could! I tell you the girl's repentant. She sees her mistakes. Judith, this is the very time for you to use your influence to cure her of her nonsense."

Knight's speech ended abruptly. Perhaps he felt he had protested too much.

Judith was silent. Suddenly she looked up.

"Well, if the trip must be made why can't you come, too? Please do, Arthur!"

He said that was completely out of the question.

"I can't leave town," he assured her. "There's this trouble getting the western branch reorganized. Henderson's in South America. Hunter expects me to have the fall schedules ready next month. You know I couldn't get away just now. Judith. If it could be managed I'd be glad to go."

"Then it's all settled," Judith said quietly after a pause. "You want me to go?"

"I wish you wouldn't put it just that way!"

Judith Knight smiled up at her husband from beneath lowered lashes. "He smile held reservations but it was affectionate."

"I'll do it if you want me to," she agreed. "I'd—oh, I'd stay away three times as long if I knew it would persuade Tony to be friendly."

"And that's just what you're going to find will happen. What will you bet that at the end of one month sunning yourself on the sand and sitting under palm trees while New York's 10 degrees below zero will be telling me you've postponed your return another two weeks?"

"I'll bet a quarter that I won't!"

"Put up your money."

THE conversation ended jokingly. It was just another of those things, Judith Knight told herself, which must be seen through to the end. There was no way, apparently, to avoid this unwelcome pilgrimage with Arthur's daughter.

She could not deny to herself the following morning that Tony's behavior was exemplary. Still Judith was wary. There had been other times when the girl's manner seemed devil-like and havoc followed close in the wake.

At 10 o'clock Tony had breakfasted and was downstairs, dressed for the day. She looked pale and considerably subdued.

"Father says we're going to Florida," she said to Judith.

"Yes, Palm Beach. Do you like it there?"

"Oh, I guess so. Anything's better than New York. I like swimming."

"Good," said Judith. "So do I." "I haven't a rag that's wearable. Can't go until I get together some clothes."

This was a phase of the expedition which had escaped Judith completely. She had the wardrobe collected so hastily for the trip to Bermuda. Few of those things, she was to learn, would do for Palm Beach.

Tony's purchases enlightened Judith. Sweetly, the younger girl asked her stepmother to accompany her upon shopping trips. The date of departure had been finally set as March 6. This gave six days to rush through preliminaries.

With admirable generalship Tony Knight began buying finery. She led the way to shops of which Judith had never heard. They were small, out-of-the-way places in the realm of upper Madison avenue. French—or English with such a French accent that Judith could scarcely understand it—was the language spoken. In such salons Tony Knight was draped and fitted in soft white wools and cotton suits, swaggar beach clothes and filmy, trailing frocks for evening which made her really beautiful.

Judith bought several costumes. It was impossible to travel as Tony's companion and not look the part. The price of these trifles appalled her. Furthermore, it all seemed so silly. Why should she spend time and money trying to look like a fashionplate merely to impress men and women unknown to her and in whom she had not the slightest interest?

In this Judith Knight's viewpoint was thoroughly feminine. Had Arthur been making the trip, if he were to be there to see her, lovely gowns would suddenly become paramount.

The day that Tony quite casually ordered three dozen pair of silk hose Judith felt she must remonstrate. She said nothing to the girl but confided in Knight.

"Don't you think, Arthur," she said cautiously, "that you really should say something to Tony about her extravagance? Just tactfully I mean?"

Knight shook his head, smiling indulgently.

"You let me worry about the financial part of this trip," he told Judith. "Just having Tony as quiet and well-behaved as she's been the past few days is almost worth the price of the thing. The kids had her lesson. Now I want to show her it pays to behave. What's the price of a few dresses and silk stockings and one thing and another compared with peace in the family?"

There was certainly no answer for Judith to make to that statement.

QUIETLY the days slipped by. Four days before their departure, Judith went in town alone on an errand. Tony had pleaded a headache and remained behind.

It was nearly four o'clock in the afternoon. There was no sun and a chill March wind was blowing. Judith held her fur wrap closely about her as she hurried up the avenue.

A window display of fine linens caught her eye. She paused, walked nearer to the shop window and inspected the tableware.

"Why—if it isn't Judith!"

The girl turned. For an instant she was incredulous. Then swiftly she recognized the woman who had spoken. She was barely three feet away, smiling and waiting.

"Mrs. West—I didn't recognize you! Why, how do you do, Mrs. West?"

"And I almost passed you. What a coincidence! My dear Judith, how well you're looking. What have you been doing all this time? So often we've thought of you."

"Oh, I've been rather busy. Doing some of the rooms of our home over. Just now I've been shopping. We're going to Florida."

"How very nice. My dear, do let's go somewhere and have tea. I'm pining for it. And I must hear the news about you and Arthur!"

That "Arthur" very nearly decided the issue. Judith had never presumed to call Mrs. Franklin West's husband by his given name. She had never, when it was available, called him anything. Hearing Mrs. West refer so intimately to Arthur Knight aroused resentment.

Still, Mrs. West looked the picture of eager friendliness, and Judith did not have many friends.

"Why, yes," she agreed. "Let's have tea."

They found a place on the second floor above a popular eating place. It was a room paneled in dark wood and hung with blue draperies. Neat waitresses in black and white gowns slipped between the tables. Here and there about the large room groups of fashionably dressed women lingered over tea and wisps of curling cigarette smoke floated ceilingward.

Judith and Mrs. West took a table at the side of the room. The older woman had been chatting volubly during the lift in the elevator. She looked very attractive, Judith admitted to herself. The small black hat Mrs. West wore with its coquettish nose veil was a trifle theatrical—still it was becoming. The green velvet wrap suited Mrs. West's high coloring, and displayed the lines of her excellent figure.

"—and we missed you so much after you left Bermuda," Mrs. West was saying. "My husband spoke of you and Arthur repeatedly. Yes, we were at Hamilton until after Christmas and ever since then I've been meaning to look you up. Now that Fate has taken a hand we really must see more of you!"

"Just as soon as we return—"

"Oh, you're NOT going to put us off that long! Please don't say that, Judith. Can't you and Arthur take dinner with us tomorrow evening?"

"I'm sorry," the girl answered. "We have an engagement."

"Then how about the next night?"

"I'm afraid Arthur's arranged something—"

"But the night after that?"

It was almost too much but Judith answered gamely:

"Yes, the night after that—unless I find that Arthur has made other plans."

"Then I'll count on you. And tell Arthur I'm especially looking forward to seeing him again."

Fully aware of how her husband regarded Mrs. Franklin Monroe West, Judith felt that mention of this would hardly be tactful. She did assure Mrs. West, however, before departing, that she would let her know definitely in the morning about the dinner engagement.

Driving home later Judith Knight was irritated by the thought that she had let herself in for a tiresome evening. But, gracious! how could she escape? And, after all, Mrs. West meant to be kind. It had been a long while since Judith had been greeted so enthusiastically by a woman friend.

"She has her faults," Judith mused, "but so do other people. If I'd only met her earlier I wouldn't have been nearly so lonesome. No, I really believe I'm glad I said we'd come to dinner."

Husbands who are kind and indulgent are not always manageable. Judith was to discover this fact that very evening. When she told Arthur Knight about the proposed visit to the Franklin Monroe West home he refused flatly to go.

"That woman is awful!" he declared heatedly. "Go to her dinner party? I certainly will not. You'll have her coming here the very next thing. She's the kind you don't dare encourage. Tell her it's impossible."

"But I did make excuses for tomorrow and the next night."

"There—you see? That's just what you'd expect."

"Listen, Arthur, I want to go."

"You WANT to go?"

Judith nodded her head soberly. "It's been pretty lonesome," she said, "knowing so few people." I like Mrs. West because she's friendly."

"Then you'll have to go without me!"

"Arthur!"

"That woman's a menace," said Arthur Knight. "If you take my advice you'll leave her alone."

"But I promised—"

"All right then. If you want to go and you promised by all means go! Only I'm not coming."

Judith spoke tensely:

"In that case I'll go—alone!"

Our yesterday's are blocks with which we build foundations for the structure of today. And our tomorrows are but fleeting clouds. The breath of circumstances may blow away. Who builds for others, wins the wreath of day. Our yesterday's should then be broad and strong to hold aloft a glorious today. —Selected.

Mrs. E. L. Cox entertained at a most attractive bridge party, Thursday afternoon at her hospitable home in Prescott, as special compliment to Mrs. Colyer Bostick Cox. The reception suite of this lovely home was beautifully decorated with a profusion of red carnations, pot plants and ferns, and the Valentine motif was all further carried out in the table, pencils and score pads of the ten tables arranged for bridge. The hostess assisted in receiving and serving the guests by Mrs. Martin Vell Pool, At Hope, sister of the hostess, Mrs. B. F. Ellington of Washington, and Mrs. Frank Turberville, Miss Neville Bemis passed the table. The high score favor went to Mrs. E. White, the cut prize to Mrs. Dean Carrington. A most delicious lunch and ice course was served on round tables, centered with vases of lovely red carnations, and the Valentine motif was carried out in the nut cups, ice and mints. The honoree received a lovely lemonade set. The guests included Mrs. B. F. Ellington of Washington, Mrs. Martin Vell Pool of Hope, Mrs. Oliver Powell of New

Truck Growers

he is in close touch with every grower in this community.

Berries and Corn
He discussed the different obstacles that he had overcome from the time the industry had started up to the present time. He was in accord with Mr. Bemis relative to strawberries and sweet corn, and was willing to help financially or otherwise to make these two major crops for the seasons to follow. He said he was putting this industry on an economic basis, and advised the grower not to plant a crop of one fruit or vegetable, but plant a variety as the market may be flooded, hence a low price for his produce. His advice to the truck growers has always been well received, and it was Mr. Stephens efforts that have made the truck growing industry as large as it is today.

A. J. Stephens talked of the Highland orchard located along the P. & N. W. Ry. and said if every truck grower would plant 10 acres of apple trees, along with his farming, in ten years he could be independent. He spoke of the different varieties that could be grown in this soil particularly that of the delicious variety. Mr. Stephens has played a big part in this industry, and his talk was well received. Bert Scott of McCaskill made short talks at both meetings, and Mr. Scott made an enthusiastic talk on the growing of sweet corn, and string beans. He said a large vat was to be erected at McCaskill to take care of the radish growers and the same vat could be used in preparing the corn for market, the tomato crop was the largest of all crops last year, and about 300 acres had been pledged for this season.

At the close of the meeting at McCaskill Mr. Scott interviewed each grower, and they all signed from 1 to 5 acres of corn, and beans. He stated as soon as the roads are passable that he will call on each grower, and would do all he could to help them on some of the various crops. He also said he had employed an experienced man to help the tomato growers in pruning their plants.

Mr. Scott in many respects has been to the McCaskill growers what Mr.

Stephens has been to the Blevins growers. Due to weather, and road conditions a small attendance was reported at both places, but the growers who were able to attend were well pleased with the different talks, and all feel optimistic for 1936.

Greater Beauty - Finer Performance

Never has a Chevrolet car won greater praise for its appearance than the new Chevrolet Six. Its new Fisher bodies reveal in every detail the artistry that has made the Fisher name famous throughout the motor car world. In beauty of line and color, in balance and harmony of design, they represent one of the greatest style triumphs in Fisher history. And the promise of this exterior beauty is more than fulfilled when you look inside the car. Upholsteries are richer and more durable. The instrument panel carries a new and more attractive grouping of the control instruments. Seats are wider and deeper. In fact, not a single feature has been overlooked that would add to the comfort and convenience of both driver and passengers.

The skin of youth lies in every line of life, and like most specialty players it was thought that this would probably be his only specialty part. Before the picture was completed he was placed under a long term contract by Paramount.

Skelly's second screen role is one purely dramatic. He is the detective brother in the picture adaptation of Edwin Burke's playlet, "Brothers," which Paramount entitled "Woman Trap." In the role of the weakling younger brother, a law breaker, is Chester Morris, young stage favorite who starred in the picture "Alibi."
